

For Immediate Release

Custom Protective Services names Aleda Sebenick Chief Executive Officer

Torrance, Calif. – August, 2014 – Custom Protective Services has announced that its board of directors has appointed Aleda Sebenick as CEO effective immediately.

Sebenick has been part of the Custom Protective Services executive team since 1993. During that time she: led the development and implementation of the company's training, compliance, payroll, and HR programs; leveraged her educational background in computers, software, and network literacy, to move the company into the digital age; and applied the experience and knowledge gained during her tenure to systematize business processes to more efficiently manage the areas of internal financial record keeping, supervision of the administrative staff, and customer service agreements.

Sebenick holds a BA in Education from Western Washington University, and a MA in Education from Arizona State University. Since 2009, Sebenick has served on the Board of California Association of Licensed Security Agencies, Guards and Associates (CALSAGA) as the Region V Co-Director.

About Custom Protective Services

Founded in 1989, Custom Protective Services is a leading national provider of an extensive line of security and personal protection services that are unsurpassed in terms of professionalism, quality, and customer satisfaction. More information about Custom Protective Services is available at <http://www.customprotective.com>

Contact

info@customprotective.com